

Someday, Sarah

Her face can move a mountain
Her water colored eyes, they shine
Every breathe she takes
She takes a little bit of mine

She's every woman's envy
Her smile it rises like the sun
When you think you've come to the end of her
You've just begun

(chorus)
Someday, Sarah
Someday, you will be my baby
Someday, Sarah
Someday, you will be my baby

Her lips ring loud with glory
Her words they rattle and they hum
There's no part of woman
That she has not become

Her laughter peels like thunder
Her anger like the ocean tide
Her love is thick and sweet
And it's a hair wide

(repeat chorus)

Written by Dave Barnes

©2006 MadInSRAV / Warner Chappell / ASCAP / CMRRA / 3 Music Rights Society